THE FRACAS AT FERNANDINA

Two Ocala Boys Came Near Causing Civil War in Nassau County

The following report of the trouble at Fernandina we take from the Nassau County Star, edited by H. P. Trimble, whose fairness and accuracy as a writer are well known:

Two young men from Ocala, H. E. Leavengood and E. M. Hendricks, were among the excursionists who arrived on Sunday morning's train and they got no further up Center street than Haddock's market before they got into trouble with a negro hack driver, Josh Watson. His retort was resented by Leavengood drawing a pistol and firing two shots at him, neither of which took effect other than to cause Watson to jump out of the carriage and take to his heels, with Leavengood chasing after him with a stick.

Leavengood and Hendricks were arrested by Chief Higginbotham, Hendricks having both their pistols in his hand at the time. They were taken up to police headquarters and after depositing a cash bond of $5 each for their appearance next morning on a charge of discharging fire arms within the city limits, were allowed to go. The chief arrested them again and held them, giving back their money.

By this time Center street was crowded with excited negroes, who were suspicious that the men would be let off without any further penalty. Watson went to Judge Hall's residence with a complaint and took a note from the Judge to Deputy Sheriff Pendarvis to arrest the strangers. The Judge then left with some friends to keep an appointment on board of the steamship Roehampton and did not get down until afternoon.

In the meantime Watson went before Justice Stays and swore out a warrant, but it was not served. The deputy, acting on the judge's note, swore out a warrant himself and went up to police headquarters to serve it. He was informed that the prisoners were under arrest by the city and that an order would have to be obtained from the mayor before they would be turned over.

This he reported to the judge, who advised him that he should summon a posse and take the men from the police by force. This would certainly have brought on bloodshed and riot and the deputy wisely refused to summon a posse.

At this juncture feeling was further fomented by W. A. Hall swearing out a warrant against Chief Higginbotham for resisting an officer.

The prisoners were kept in police headquarters all day, for their own safety. Toward night the county judge made a verbal request of the mayor to turn them over and they were surrendered to Deputy Pendarvis about 6 o'clock. They were taken to the Florida House for the night and kept under guard.

Monday morning at 10 o'clock the court room was crowded with spectators to witness the trial.

The state was represented by L. J. Tipples and the defense was represented by Attorney Allred, of Ocala. On the charge of aggravated assault examination was waived by the defendants, who were bound over to circuit court under $200 bond. E. D. Leuebill and J. J. Kelly went on their bond.

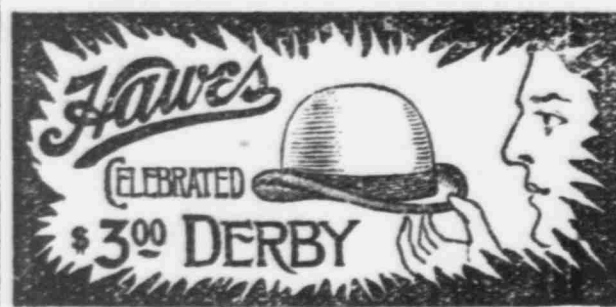

A jury was then empaneled and both men were put on trial for carrying concealed weapons, and the case occupied the court until 8 o'clock that night.

A mistrial was the result in the first instance, the jury standing two for acquittal and four for conviction. A new jury was empaneled and the case tried again. The second jury came in at 7 p. m. and reported that they could not agree. They were sent out for another hour and came back with the same result. The second jury stood three and three. The judge then dismissed the case.

Attorney Tipples threatened to take the case to Stays' court and says he will appeal to the governor to have them brought back here and tried again.

Th released men took a carriage and drove to Yulee to catch a train, fearing further complications if they remained over night.

During the day Chief Higginbotham appeared before the judge and waived examination on the charge against him and was bound over to circuit court on his own recognizance. The chief was anxious to have a bond imposed upon himself and says he would
